

THURSDAY,
NOVEMBER 13,
2003

7:00 > 9:00 pm

Room 147

Communication Arts & Sciences

Michigan State University

East Lansing

For most people, peer-to-peer file sharing has become part of their everyday life. Every month, people swap billions of music files. Although online piracy was initially limited to music, problems have spread to books and movies with increased bandwidth and as more advanced compression technologies emerge. To help you better understand the legal, economic, and ethical implications of peer-to-peer file sharing, this panel brings together experts from different disciplines and organizations.

YOU DOWNLOADED WHAT?

The Law, Economics and Ethics of File Sharing

- > Gary Reid, Distinguished Senior Specialist, Department of Telecommunication, Information Studies & Media, College of Communication Arts & Sciences, Michigan State University (moderator)
- > Richard J. Enbody, Associate Professor of Computer Science and Engineering, College of Engineering, Michigan State University
- > David A. Gift, Vice Provost, Libraries, Computing and Technology, Michigan State University
- > Robin D. Gross, Executive Director, IP Justice
- > Peter K. Yu, Assistant Professor of Law & Director, Intellectual Property & Communications Law Program, Michigan State University-DCL College of Law; Adjunct Professor of Telecommunication, Information Studies and Media, College of Communication Arts & Sciences, Michigan State University
- > Representative of the Recording Industry Association of America

Presented jointly by:

Quello Center for Telecommunication Management & Law
College of Communication Arts & Sciences

Intellectual Property & Communications Law Program
Michigan State University-DCL College of Law and

The Cybersecurity Initiative