The Economics & Strategy Group carries out a wide range of research and teaching activities in the general fields of international business, strategic management, entrepreneurship and international economics.

Research within the Group is generally of an applied nature (including both quantitative and qualitative methods), often cutting across research areas, and is designed to be directly relevant to international business.

Group members have high visibility within the academic community, and publish in leading academic journals such as Academy of Management Journal, Economic Journal, Journal of International Business Studies, Journal of Management Studies, Organization Science, Organization Studies, Oxford Economic Papers, Research Policy and Strategic Management Journal.

Further information about group members and their research interests are available at:
